Levi Wilson alleged Philip Moen persuaded him, against his inclination, to settle previous suits involving breached promises to marry. He claimed Moen promised to help defray the cost of this settlement. Moen denied this, and claimed that Wilson owed him $95,000 for unpaid loans. In a different case, Wilson also alleged himself to be a relative of Moen.

Examines the Supreme Court's unanimous 1952 decision in favor of a film exhibitor who had been denied a license to show the controversial Italian film, Il Miracolo. The ruling was a watershed event in the history of film censorship, ushering in a new era of mature--and sophisticated--American filmmaking.
